Rejections!

Here's an idea supplied by Ruth Elwood Martin:

When compiling data of "successful" publications, it seems a shame to miss off "rejected" publications. A similar amount of time and effort will have gone into these latter sorry morsels. Perhaps it would help those of us who have been afflicted with the big R to admit temporary defeat and bounce back with an exclamation "But I did at least try!"

What Would You Like to See?

This newsletter provides an opportunity to showcase your research, whether it be grant applications, publications, abstracts or books. Peter Granger suggested we collect information on conference presentations – posters or speaking engagements. This seems like a very good idea, so for the next edition a call will go out to all researchers to supply this added information.

If you have a suggestion for upcoming editions of The Bear Bones, please contact Janet Alred at jalred@cw.bc.ca. We look forward to hearing from you!

This seems like the perfect opportunity to remind readers that Dr. John Hoey, CMAJ Editor in Chief, will be giving workshops in early March on writing and getting published. This is definitely an excellent opportunity for writers of medical genres to attend. See the Research Website (www.familypractice.ubc.ca/indexb.html) for more information.
